Also have a look at Maude's poster, the FideoVerse website and the competition rules to help you. Second, Akira Wong's entry for the competition does not meet our rules. Can you please write her a polite email and explain why she has been rejected (e.g. length of video, content etc)? You can look at the rules for the competition, the information on her online submission form and our WhatsApp group. Make sure your email is encouraging and positive. Finally, I want you to write an announcement to be posted on our new website about the Prize Giving Ceremony for the Youth by Youth Short Video Competition. Youth by Youth Short Video Competition Poster

Ms Ray told the meeting that the Tyrell Coffee House can no longer be the sponsor as they have declared bankruptcy. Fortunately, Yutani Video Games has offered to become the new sponsor for the Youth by Youth Short Video Competition. This should be changed on the poster.

Ms Kapoor said she was unhappy with the image on the poster. She felt it should be replaced because the Saint Elgin's School Video Club uses the same image. She suggested using an image of a video camera instead. The committee agreed.

Nico to give Ms Woo feedback explaining changes to be made on poster.

Prize Giving Ceremony for the Youth by Youth Short Video Competition

Mr Chow told the committee that the voting from all participating schools for the prize giving ceremony would end on 5 April. From the vote results, Nico should select the most popular choices for:

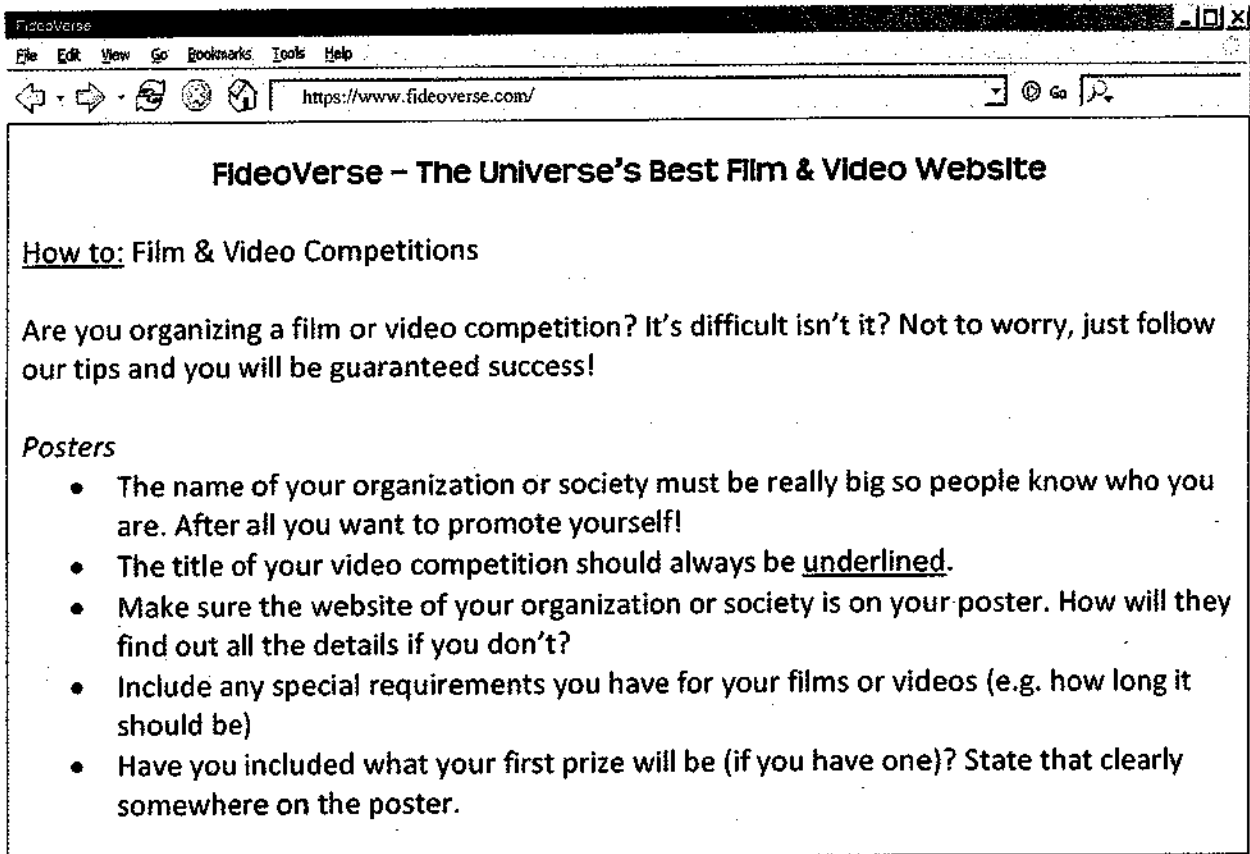

- the prize giving ceremony host
- the activity for the ceremony

Ms Ray noted that due to budget restrictions, there will be one judge only. Nico should select the cheapest judge. Nico should refer to the tabled Fact File.

Mr Chow confirmed all attendees of the ceremony will be given free gift packs. Nico to include this information in the announcement for the event.

Next meeting fixed for Tues. 9 April. Venue to be confirmed.

You gotta see this movie. Totally rocks to see the Virtual Reality (VR) on 360 degree headset, you know what I'm sayin'. You can see everything all around you. Candy for the eyes.

Filminator91 Posted: February 1 2019, 11:43 PM

Saw it. Yeah, the VR is mindblowing. The best movie I've seen visually in many a year. Period. Nice to watch but what's it all about?

Rowett Uni Posted: February 2 2019, 03:05 AM

So tired of dummies not getting the meaning of this genius film. Don't you get it? Don't you realize all these evil corporations (you don't need me to give you names!) make us see the world the way they want us to see it. We are all Sammi!!

Filminator91 Posted: February 2 2019, 09:07 AM

Woah! Who you callin' ignorant?! What makes u such an expert?

Rowett Uni Posted: February 2 2019, 03:47 PM

Teach film studies at top UK university. Are we done now?

DroogScoob Posted: February 2 2019, 11:01 PM

Wonderful movie. I will never look at noodles the same way tho - LOL!

LittleAlexi Posted: February 2 2019, 11:06 PM

Yes, I know. NOODLES!!!! I can't believe that so many people have been criticizing this movie. I saw a YouTube review saying how worthless a movie it was. Unbelievable! It's the best movie of this millennium.

FitLikeMin Posted: February 3 2019, 06:33 AM

Who cares? Cinema is dead!! Long live Netflix. Yay!

Rowett Uni Posted: February 3 2019, 07:48 AM

Actually it's not. How many times have we heard that? Guess what? Idiots saying TV's totally gonna destroy cinema. Never has. End of story!

FitLikeMin Posted: February 3 2019, 07:54 AM

Who's calling who an idiot? I've got access to 100s of movies at home on Netflix. Once everyone's got that who's goin' to bother with the cinema? Answer: Nobody.

Rowett Uni Posted: February 3 2019, 08:01 AM

Well, everybody actually. It's basic psychology. (Not that you know what that word means!) Humans need group experiences. Understand? That's why people even idiots like you, will always need to go to the cinema. To share the experience.

Ms Woo confirmed the following requirements for the venue for the screening of 'The Electronic Durian' and the post-screening discussion on Wed 19 June:

For the Post-Screening Discussion on Stage

- Minimum size of stage for discussion: depth > 4 metres, length > 20 metres
- Wheelchair ramp access onto stage

Venue Choice for Screening of 'The Electronic Durian'

Of the three possible cinema venues, Mr Choi was of the very strong opinion that the Brighthouse Cinema in Sha Tak was the best option for the venue of the screening of 'The Electronic Durian' and the post-screening discussion as it is the cheapest of the three and within the Festival budget. Ms Woo and Ms Kapoor agreed.

Ms Ray and Mr Chow expressed very strong reservations about the suitability of the Brighthouse Cinema. Ms Ray told the committee that she had heard rumours that the Brighthouse Cinema failed a government inspection previously.

Action to be taken:

Ms Alia Kapoor to conduct site visit of the Brighthouse Cinema in coming week.

Nico Lin to write report on Brighthouse Cinema for next committee meeting.

Next meeting fixed for Tues. 9 April. Venue to be confirmed.

Interview from Plato's Cave film magazine (extract)

This week Jodie Broch was delighted to meet up with Isabel Luna, SE Asia's talented young filmmaker, at the Virtual Madness Convention in New Lossiemouth, USA to talk to her about her science fiction thriller, The Electronic Durian. Extract of transcript below:

Broch: We loved the character of Sammi in the film. And great to see Rebecca Chin back in a leading role after taking time off to finish her degree. How did Rebecca cope with all of the rigours of the shoot?

Luna: Well, Rebecca had to wear special contact lenses for a lot of the filming. The trouble was that Rebecca is one of these people who just finds it really difficult to put in contact lenses in real life. Her eyes just close. So that was a challenge for her and her makeup people every morning.

Broch: Ah poor her! Speaking of lenses, when Rebecca's character, Sammi takes them off it's important for the plot right?

Luna: Yes, that's the turning point. That's when she suddenly sees the real world. You know, not the one the corporation created.

Broch: And that's when her troubles really kick off, of course.

Luna: Yeah, well that was the most exciting part to shoot. And fun too with all those noodles!

Broch: It's all very different from the beginning of the film.

Rebecca Chin in the Electronic Durian

Luna: Yes well I wanted to start the movie with the scene where it's Sammi's first day at her first job at the corporation. We can all remember how exciting that day is. I just wanted to show her having a normal life at the start.

Broch: I also like the scene just after that when you show how the corporation in the film tricked its employees into wearing its lenses.

Luna: Right, thanks.

Broch: And from that moment, that's it. They're in this ideal world created by the corporation.

Luna: Yeah supposedly ideal. But it's not of course.

Broch: OK, turning to another topic that I know is close to your heart, I understand it's getting very difficult for filmmakers like yourself, or say like Ayu Putri in Hong Kong. You make these low-budget independent films and still get them shown in mainstream cinemas. Is it getting more difficult?

Luna: Well yes and no. It is difficult. I would never say otherwise. But you have to realise that the big studios need low-budget films to be a success. They need them to continue.

Broch: But how do you mean? Surely the low-budget films are in direct competition with the big studios' big blockbusters. The big studios want to beat these low-budget filmmakers.

Luna: Well let me answer by asking a question: Where do the big studios get new talented directors from?

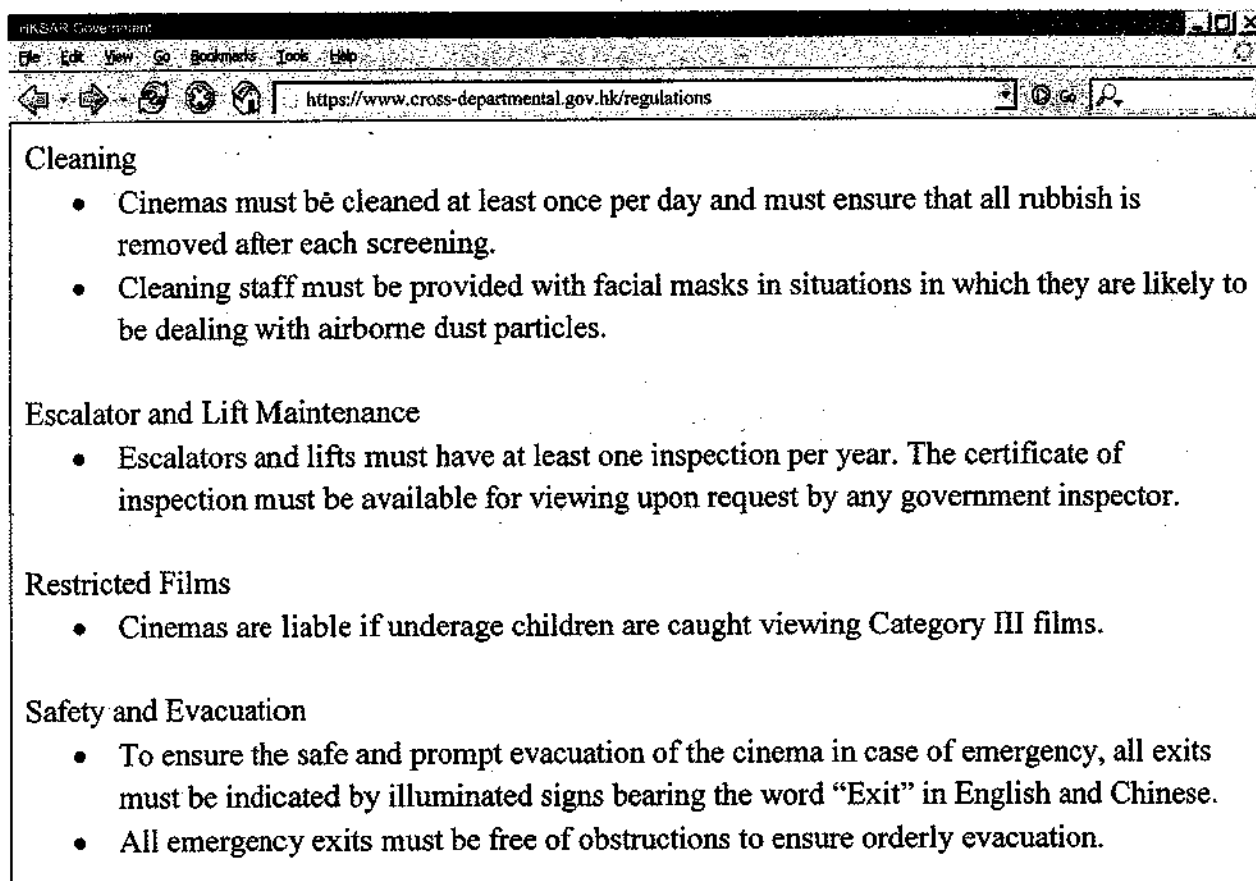

Broch: Erm...the low-budget films I suppose.

Luna: So who are the directors who will be making the blockbusters in the future?

Broch: Erm...the same ones. The low-budget independent film directors of today.

Luna: Exactly. So the big studios need low-budget films to continue for that very reason.

Ringo

I was going to ask. How was the Advance Screening of The Electronic Durian last night? How was it? What's it about?

9:08 AM

Mira

Well it's set in 2030 or something and there's this girl called Sammi...
Actually I won't spoil it for you!

9:10 AM

Mira

And you don't want to miss the metal noodles scene! Everyone thought it was hilarious. Best scene in the film. Not to be missed.

9:11 AM

Ringo

Sounds great. Looking forward to seeing it at the Festival.

9:15 AM

Mira

You should see how Isabel Luna uses VR as well.

9:27 AM

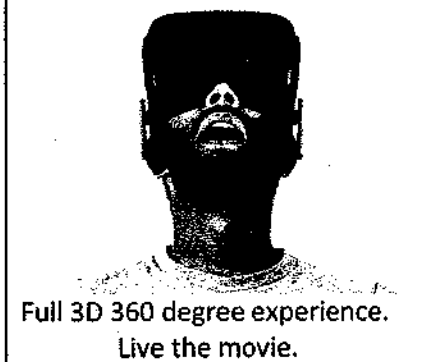

Ringo

No idea what VR is.

Ringo

Oh, not so sure. Looks more like a gimmick to me.

9:57AM

Mira

What Isabel Luna does is amazing tho. You don't see innovations like this in all those Hollywood blockbusters.

9:58AM

Ringo

How so? I thought VR would be so expensive that it'd only be big budget blockbusters that can use it.

10:23 AM

Mira

Well that's where you're wrong. The technology's cheap and all of these low budget film makers - being independent and everything - have the freedom to explore this type of thing. It's really exciting. Big budget blockbusters will always play it safe.

10:30AM

Mira

Just thinking, Nico, this is all stuff you could include in your speech.
